The Woodcraft Folk

1925-1985

60th ANNIVERSARY

This year the Woodcraft Folk celebrates its 60th Anniversary as Britain's leading progressive youth organisation.

Founded in 1925 as an organisation for boys and girls based on the principles of peace, co-operation, equality and world friendship, the Woodcraft Folk has grown rapidly in recent years.

500 groups exist throughout Britain — over 200 of them are in London — for children and young people aged 6 to 20. They take part in a variety of activities including camping, hiking, singing, dancing, drama, discussions, craftwork and games.

Interest in the Woodcraft Folk continues to grow. But its resources are very limited. The organisation needs a major influx of funds in order to build upon its existing strengths.

The undermentioned people have agreed to support the Woodcraft Folk in its appeal for funds during its 60th Anniversary year:

FEATURES

6 Summit to Talk About Margot Light

Gorbachev and Reagan are about to meet. Will the world be able to breathe a little more easily?

10 Labour: The Feminist Touch • Anna Coote

Is Labour about to recognise that women make up half the population? Unlikely, but now's the moment.

17 Growing Greens Fred Steward

Behind the Greenpeace headlines is a green movement very much on the up.

20 Rainbows and Warriors Interview with Steve Sawyer

Greenpeace has been treading on the toes of governments for some while. This time the response led to an almighty scandal. But what is Greenpeace? We interview one of the leading figures in Greenpeace International.

23 Riot Acts: The Politics of Despair* Dave Cook

Just four years on, the country has been shaken yet again by inner-city riots. Where are we going?

28 Benetton Britain: The New Economic Order Robin Murray

Keynesianism won't work any more. And the main reason is the new industrial revolution.
