HARD times

T*he scenes of hooliganism that ended the football season are all too likely to be repeated as England's most notorious export reaches the shores of Italy.*

A*nd yet, it is within the much maligned football community that we have seen a model of resistance to the break-up of society. The Football Supporters Association have set out on a project to democratise the game, taking control of the clubs and institutions that so ruthlessly exploit their support.*

A*cid House comes a close second to football fans in the tabloids' top ten of moral panics. And again, it is the subject community, this time party-goers, who have developed new forms of the collective in the face of Thatcherite authoritarianism.*

T*hatcher's children, one and all, it is these generations who feel the need to belong to new collectivities, connected to the energy of* PEOPLE-POWER, the key phrase for the 90s.

H*ow can the Left be transformed by these new forms? As hard times turn to iron times this is an urgent question. A politics of the future has to engage with, learn from, the new, never to be simply satisfied with tracking opinion polls or empty gestures but empowering those who have been left cold by all our agendas.*

NEW STATESMAN SOCIETY

SUBSCRIBE NOW AND RECEIVE UP TO EIGHT BOOKS ABSOLUTELY FREE

This unique offer is open to all new subscribers. You can choose from the list of five newly published books below, each selected from the list of Hutchinson Radius, one of the UK's leading publishers. Take out a 1 year subscription to New Statesman & Society and you will receive one book of your choice absolutely FREE. Subscribe for 2 years and get three books. Take a 3 year subscription and you will receive all five of these books. Plus every new subscriber receives another three free books — a total offer worth over £80.

1. WONDERFUL LIFE by Stephen Jay Gould tells the extraordinary story of the Burgess shale fossils. Over 500 million years ago lived creatures more fantastic and varied than those found on earth today. At first regarded as curiosities, they are now revolutionising our views on how life developed.

2. COLD WAR, THIRD WORLD by Fred Halliday is a brilliant analysis of the new turns in superpower politics in the Bush-Gorbachev era. It offers a striking balance sheet of a decade of conflict in the Third World and locates it within the broader pattern of US-Soviet relations.

3. EUROPE, EUROPE is an extraordinary travel book which tells of Hans Magnus Enzensberger's forays into a continent. Avoiding the big European states, and ignoring Cold War political boundaries, Germany's leading poet discovers a continent of countries out of step with history and with each other. He captures the peculiar oddity of each of them, and evokes their cities, their bars and their cultures.

4. WHAT I CAME TO SAY is perhaps the most personal selection of Raymond Williams's work, including his picture of Cambridge University from the viewpoint of a Welsh, working-class student before the war; his vivid cameo of F.R. Leavis; reflections on his contemporaries, and on writers who were important to him — among them Solzhenitsyn, Lukacs and Brecht; and his sharp judgements on subjects as varied as Monty Python, the Falklands War and classical Latin.

5. THE VANISHED LIBRARY by Luciano Carofora was the winner of the Latina prize in 1987. This most unusual book tells the intriguing story of the Library of Alexandria which was one of the wonders of the Ancient World and still fascinates Western culture over 2000 years later.

Plus

In addition every subscriber will receive two books by NSS' own Duncan Campbell — The Unsinkable Aircraft Carrier, an analysis of US military power in Britain and War Plan UK, the secret truth about Britain's 'Civil Defence' — together with a copy of An Owl in a Sack Troubles No Man, the latest compilation of winners of the NSS Weekend Competition.

*Limited stocks. Offer open only while stocks last.

Welsh National OPERA

"THE FIRST BRITISH OPERA COMPANY TO WANT OPERA TO THINK AS WELL AS EMOTE"
THE POETRYCENT 1985

THE WORLD PREMIERE OF T O R N R A K

by JOHN METCALF with libretto by Michael Wilcox

COMMISSIONED BY WELSH NATIONAL OPERA

Set against the wide open spaces of the Canadian Arctic, an Inuit (Esima) woman saves the life of a shipwrecked sailor, and returns with him to Britain. The moving story of their doomed love affair contrasts the beauty, dignity and savagery of Inuit culture with the conventions and attitudes of 19th Century Britain.

Composer John Metcalf has introduced haunting native throat singing techniques into his vocal writing to create a score of great lyricism and dramatic intensity, which combines strikingly with the powerful stage images.

EAST EUROPEAN REPORTER

"The pioneering post-Communist transition to democracy makes the Reporter indispensable."

Miklos Haraszti

Free at last to determine their own futures, the people of Central and Eastern Europe face difficult choices.

East European Reporter was founded in 1985 to provide current information about the countries of the then Eastern Bloc, and a platform for the independent opposition groups and initiatives engaged in transforming them. Its honorary editors - who include Vaclav Havel, Adam Michnik and Janos Kis - spent some fifty years in prison before becoming the leaders of parties and nations. Now East European Reporter, a quarterly journal, continues to allow Central and East Europeans to speak for themselves, through essays, interviews, debates and documents essential for the understanding of day-to-day developments.

Their choice is difficult. To stay informed, yours is easier.

"The future of Eastern Europe requires that we do not substitute new "unquestionable" doctrines for the old. Therefore we need an uninterrupted discussion about our experiences and ideas for tomorrow. The East European Reporter represents one of the forums needed for such a discussion." Adam Michnik

"Western specialists have long felt the need for a journal which attempts regularly to describe and analyse developments in East Central European countries in a comparative framework... East European Reporter is a pioneering attempt to tackle this vital task." Timothy Garton Ash

Please send a cheque for £19 (£32 Institutions) annual subscription to four issues, made payable to East European Reporter, to:

CIRCULATION MANAGER

We are looking for a graduate with an interest in a career in publishing. Ideally they will have a business studies or similar background, they certainly should be both interested in marketing and have a high degree of numeracy.

He/she will be taking over as our Circulation Manager from the end of June and will be responsible for all aspects of the magazine's distribution and marketing. The successful candidate will need to be computer literate, with a keen analytical mind, good at identifying sales trends and initiating promotional campaigns. He/she will be a good sales person, at ease with management.

Previous experience would be useful, but not essential. What is essential is an aptitude for the aforementioned skills, so if your background and/or training equips you for this challenging opportunity please apply.

For an informal chat phone Mark Perryman on 071-608 0265.
Apply in writing to: Circulation Manager Application, Marxism Today, 16 St John Street, London EC1M 4AY.

Closing Date: Friday June 8th.
